Dr. Dickey, Campus Leaders Discuss Constitution Change

A program to promote the call for a limited convention to consider revisions of the state constitution was launched Tuesday in a meeting held by UK President Frank G. Dickey with heads of student organizations.

The meeting, held in the president's office, was designed "merely to advance discussion of the change in the constitution," President Dickey explained.

He said the chief outcome of the talk was a plan in which the housing units of the University might select speakers from a suggested list. The speakers will meet with the groups to discuss the revision.

The lists of suggested speakers are available in the offices of the dean of men and the dean of women, Dr. Dickey said. UK groups, other than the housing units, may decide on whether they wish to invite speakers.

Plans were also discussed to urge the organizations to distribute revision literature in Lexington.

The president said that the Young Republicans and the Young Democrats clubs will "work together in giving out literature in the community."

These clubs will also participate in a door-to-door campaign on election day, Nov. 8, urging citizens to vote for the convention.

President Dickey said the most effective way an individual student can aid in the campaign is to contact others, particularly his family, urging them to vote for the revision.

He said students should make themselves available to the Young Democrats or the Young Republicans if they want to help in the drive.

Attending the meeting Tuesday were the following leaders representing their respective organizations: Bob Wainwright, Student Congress; Dave McClellan, IFC;

The Panhellenic Association agreed Tuesday night to send letters to member sororities of the National Panhellenic Association inviting petitions to colonize at the University.

This is the first formal move by the sororities since the formation of a committee last spring to add one or two sororities to the present system.

Joan Stewart, president of the local Panhellenic Association, said the letter will inform national sororities not represented on campus of the University.

Pointing out a need for more sororities, Miss Stewart said the present sorority quotas were not large enough to allow all girls out for rush to pledge. Each of the 10 sororities is allowed to have 85 members, she added.

Miss Stewart said out of approximately 500 girls out for rush this fall only about 300 pledged. She added that they hoped to have colonization next year.

In other action the council made three recommendations to improve the rush system.

Miss Stewart said the council agreed that the 50 minute "coke" parties were too long and should be cut to 10 minutes.

The other suggestions dealt with bid day held this year in the Funkhouser Building. It had previously been held in the Fine Arts Building.

Miss Stewart said the council recommended the use of a loud speaker in announcing "which rushee got which sorority."

The third suggestion was that something should be done concerning traffic in the main corridor of the building while the announcements are being made. Miss Stewart said many rushees were going in the front door as the ones who "had already gotten their sorority" were coming out.

This caused quite a mix-up, she added, and it is hoped that next year girls entering the building will go in the side doors and then leave through the front door.

The council also discussed changing the pledge presentation. Miss Stewart said she thought it should be sooner since the girls "lose interest after a week."

She added that they were considering having a pledge dance instead of the presentation next year.

The next meeting of the association is scheduled Nov. 1 in the Journalism Building.

Outstanding Cadets Presented Awards

Distinguished aerospace science cadets were recognized at a special ceremony in Memorial Coliseum yesterday morning. Nine newly elected sponsors were also introduced during the ceremony.

Col. Roland W. Boughton, head of the Department of Aerospace Science, presented distinguished Cadet badges to Robert E. Boyer, Michael Vaughan, Samuel R. Newland Jr., George D. Locke, Jr., Michael C. Hinton, Garryl C. Sipple, and Michael H. Lowry.

In order to be eligible for a badge, a cadet must be in the top third of his class at summer camp, in University studies, and Air Science courses. He must also be chosen by the head of the Department of Aerospace Science.

Major Paul S. Schuler, advanced course director, presented silver wings to all senior cadets in the flight instruction program who have soloed at Bluegrass Airport.

Those receiving their wings were Frank McKee, Ivan G. Morgan, Michael Vaughan, John B. Goodwin, Jay L. Gregson, Dallas W. Halcomb, Michael C. Hinton, William B. Pope, Garryl C. Sipple, Charles R. Carden, Robert S. Mason, and Charles R. Dick.

The newly elected sponsors were escorted to the center of the Coliseum floor by members of the Cadet Police Squadron. Here the group commander introduced the new sponsors.

Newly elected sponsors are Faye Drew, Kitty Hundley, Carol Leet, Brenda Botkins, Geri Ranch, Nina Jane Snapp, Lana Coyle, Linda Tobin, and Jackie Chestnut.

$250,000 Goal Neared In Alumni Center Drive

The Alumni Association's drive to raise $250,000 for an Alumni Center is nearing its goal.

After 16 months of solicitation, only $6,000 is needed to complete the drive, Miss Helen G. King, director of alumni affairs said.

The drive, the first major fund raising drive by the Alumni Association since 1924, was initiated in 1959. It was to be the Association's main contribution to the University's centennial celebration.

Known as the Century Club drive, the goal of the campaign was a gift of $500 each from 500 or more alumni and friends of the University.

Cash and pledges amounting to $244,100 have been received so only 12 more members are needed to achieve the goal, she said.

When completed in 1965 the center will be open to students, faculty, and alumni, Miss King said.

"It is going to be a functional building to be enjoyed by the whole University," she said.

Money raised will go toward alumni projects other than the Alumni Center, Miss King said. Among them are:

1. The $2,800 Alumni Loyalty Fund Scholarship offered each fall.
2. Rewards to faculty members who make outstanding teaching and research contributions.
3. Financial assistance to student organizations of distinction and merit.
4. Alumni seminars where outstanding alumni and faculty members discuss current topics of interest.

"Our campaign was initiated in order for us to make a substantial contribution to UK on its centennial," Miss King continued.

"One fact we are most proud of in our campaign is that we have used no professional fund raising organization," she concluded. "It has been done through the support of the alumni committees and the staff."

She mentioned two more reasons why the association is striving to obtain a quarter of a million dollars. One is to aid faculty members by underwriting their trips to professional meetings where research papers and addresses are to be presented.

The other is to provide research facilities that are not easily obtainable through the usual sponsoring agencies.

A subcommittee of the Alumni Executive Committee is now working with architects to complete plans for the center. It is hoped that construction will begin as soon as the drive's goal is reached.

Debate Meet Opens Today In Fine Arts

The third annual Thoroughbred Debate Tournament will begin at 6:30 tonight in the Fine Arts Building.

Twenty universities and colleges, including UK, will compete in the tournament which ends Saturday.

Among the participants will be teams from Notre Dame and Wisconsin State, winners of the first two previous tournaments.

Eighty debates are scheduled for the three-day meet. Sessions will begin at 6:30 p.m. today, and at 8:50 Friday and Saturday mornings. The final round will begin at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

The question debated in college competition this year is, "Resolved: That the United States should adopt a program of compulsory health insurance for all citizens."

WORLD NEWS AT A GLANCE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 19 (AP)—The Soviet Union threatened today to walk out on U.N. disarmament debate. The United States replied that it refused to be intimidated by such threats, and challenged the Soviets to join in a workable disarmament program.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin told the U.N.'s main political committee that if the United States and its allies insist upon pressing their disarmament proposals, the committee's work will become impossible.

U. S. Bans Exports To Cuba

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—The United States today took its toughest action yet against the Fidel Castro regime, banning exports of all U.S. goods to Cuba except medical supplies and food.

A U.S. spokesman billed the move "not economic reprisal" but rather a reluctantly undertaken action to defend American businessmen "against the discriminatory, aggressive, and injurious economic policies of the Castro regime."

And it was on a day when the political trails of the two presidential hopefuls crossed in the biggest city.

Nixon Released From Subpoena

LITTLETON, N.H., Oct. 19 (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon was released today from a surprise subpoena calling on him to testify as a defense witness in a tax evasion trial.

The subpoena was withdrawn after government lawyers agreed to permit introduction of an old letter in which the Republican presidential candidate complimented the defendant—Mark Granite.

Integration Leader Arrested

ATLANTA, Oct. 19 (AP)—A nationally known integration leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, was taken away by police today as he participated in a widespread lunch counter sit-in demonstration.

Other demonstrators besides the Negro minister were arrested and booked under a 1960 state law providing jail terms and fines for persons refusing to leave a business establishment when told to do so by the operator.

News Publication To Run Articles By Dr. Plummer

A series of articles written by Dr. Niel Plummer, director of the UK School of Journalism, concerning libel suits resulting from mistakes in newspapers, is appearing in Publishers' Auxiliary.

"The idea behind the series," Dr. Plummer said, "is to search out practical newspaper problems which have resulted in law suits and, after researching the case, state simply what the courts have said about the problem."

The series, entitled "The Legal Side," includes an article about a different case each week. The Publishers' Auxiliary is a trade publication which goes to nearly every newspaper office in the United States.

One article in the series concerns a case in which a newspaper designated which candidate in a campaign was qualified and which wasn't. The "not qualified" candidate considered himself libeled; the court said he wasn't.

The mistakes can originate through a mental slipup, a mechanical miscue, or problems which occur in gathering, checking, and writing the news.

Dr. Donovan Deeds Farm To Research Foundation

University President Emeritus and Mrs. Herman L. Donovan have deeded their 182-acre Madison County farm to the Kentucky Research Foundation. Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, president of the Foundation and UK vice president, has announced.

Dr. Donovan, who retired in 1957 after 15 years as president, specified that the proceeds from the gift be used to "enrich the environment in which the students of the University of Kentucky live and to promote their appreciation of things beautiful and lovely."

"The farm is in an excellent state of cultivation and represents a very important addition to the assets of the Kentucky Research Foundation," Dr. Chamberlain said.

Located on U. S. Highway 25 between Richmond and Berea, the farm will be operated strictly as a business venture by KRF and will not be used for experimental purposes, Dr. Chamberlain added. "The gift—either the farm itself or proceeds that might result from its sale—will be held as an endowment by the Kentucky Research Foundation in the interest of the University," he said.

A marker will be placed on the farm indicating that it belongs to the Foundation as a result of a gift by Dr. and Mrs. Donovan, the vice president said.

Dr. Donovan requested the proceeds be used for, but not limited to, "the beautification of the University campus; purchase of good and beautiful books, music programs, and beautiful pictures."

Spindletop Hall Will Become University Conference Center

Spindletop Hall will soon become a part of the University's academic life.

President Frank G. Dickey announced that the 40-room mansion on Spindletop Farm will be used by the University as a site for various UK-sponsored conferences and institutes.

"We feel it is the best way to use the mansion at this time," Dr. Dickey said.

No changes are planned in the mansion's furnishings or decorations. It will still be open to visitors when the schedule does not conflict with an institute or conference.

Dr. A. D. Albright, University provost and executive dean of extended programs, will be responsible for scheduling Spindletop for conferences and institutes. The Board of Trustees has authorized $25,000 for maintaining the building during the 1960-61 fiscal year.

The Kentucky Research Foundation purchased 1,066-acre Spindletop Farm from Mrs. Pansy Yount Grant, Beaumont, Texas, for a "gift price" of $860,000 early last year. It was constructed in 1935 at an estimated cost of one million dollars.

Furniture will be taken to the mansion for conferences and institutes. University food service facilities will furnish the meals. One of Spindletop's kitchens may later be used to serve conference participants.

Part of the farm, 75 acres, has been reserved as the site for the Kentucky Spindletop Research Center. The Kentucky Research Foundation will hold the remainder of the farm as investment property, possible sites for industrially owned laboratories.

The State Department of Finance has scheduled bid taking in December for construction of the Spindletop Research Institute Building on the farm. Bids for the foundation may be let earlier so its construction can be completed before freezing weather.

Completion of the structure is expected by early spring of 1961, according to current plans. It will contain 28,000 square feet of laboratory and office space. Preliminary estimates set the cost of the building at $75,000.

Long-range plans call for the structure to ultimately house administrative offices, with additional buildings erected for research laboratories.

The Institute, an arm of the Kentucky Research Foundation and the University, will serve as the hub of a 425-acre development on Spindletop Farm to be known as the Kentucky Spindletop Research Center and Park.

Fall Deadline Announced For Stylus Manuscripts

The deadline for the submission of manuscripts and art work for the fall issue of Stylus is Nov. 10, Kay Collier Sloan, Stylus editor, announced yesterday.

The works may be submitted to Prof. Robert Hazel, faculty advisor, Dr. John Cutler, Dr. Sheldon Grebstein or to the English Department office.

Stylus is a campus literary magazine published semi-annually by UK students. It contains short stories, poems, articles, and art by UK students.

Each spring, seven cash awards are presented to Stylus contributors for outstanding work published during the year.

Un-Welcome Week

We have heard that an evaluation has been made of this year's Welcome Week program.

Such evaluation, we feel, is called for. There are a number of changes which must be made in the program before next fall's great influx of freshmen.

In the past, freshmen orientation week has been conducted along the lines of a cattle drive with upperclassmen guides herding the new students from place to place. The cattle drive aspect of this year's orientation was heightened when it terminated in the slaughterhouse atmosphere of the Coliseum during registration.

It is no wonder a large percentage of freshmen become homesick, many to the point of giving up and going home or leaving the University to register at a smaller school where they feel (correctly) that they will be made to feel more at home.

Freshman orientation must be humanized and keyed to the many new students who have never been away from home before. Otherwise the University will have to set up another program to rectify the damage to students' morale caused by Welcome Week.

"No, no, John. He's NASTY!"

'Great Debate' Story Brings Comment

Questions Blyton

To The Editor:

As a varsity member of Dr. (Gifford) Blyton's debate team, I would like to comment on his recent article (Kernel, Oct. 18).

As adviser to the Young Republicans' Club, Dr. Blyton is recognized as a Nixon supporter; however, I was appalled by the inaccuracies in his propaganda article. Let us see where the facts have been misrepresented.

I agree with Dr. Blyton that Nixon's debating skill certainly shows up. No man could possibly distort the truth like Mr. Nixon unless he was a debater. For example, only a debater could convince people that he favored aid to education after his vote had defeated a bill for federal aid to education several months ago. No man except a debater could convince Dr. Blyton that our prestige was the highest in the world, especially after the Communist China vote, which marked the only time in the history of the United Nations that the majority of nations did not vote for us.

On the basis of intellect and perception, Sen. Kennedy, not Mr. Nixon, excelled. What type of intellect is required to call as a lie, Sen. Kennedy's statement that "15,000,000 Americans have an inadequate diet," especially when those figures were quoted by Ezra Benson and Sen. George Aiken (R-Vt.)? What type of perception is required to declare that Quemoy and Matsu are defensible when the vast majority of our military leaders, including Republican Gen. Douglas MacArthur, have stated the opposite?

If this is Dr. Blyton's concept of intelligence and perception he has certainly changed his lecture notes.

Who is emotional? Sen. Kennedy who represents facts as they are without crocodile tears (remember '52) or a trembling voice or Mr. Nixon who last week lamented of "mothers and their little children expecting high morality" and fervently proclaimed that we shall not "surrender another inch to the Communists?"

Sen. Kennedy is factual and straightforward; Mr. Nixon, verbose and maudlin.

No one can be for Mr. Nixon and then say that he's a "thinking man's candidate."

DENO CURRIS

Thinking Man

To The Editor:

I do not question at all Dr. (Gifford) Blyton's statement in (Tuesday's) Kernel saying, "On the basis of intelligence and perception, Nixon is winning." I feel that I am not qualified to question this statement because Dr. Blyton has so ably shown his knowledge in the field of debating by being the coach of a very fine debate team every year.

However, I have to disagree with the general theme of the article. I believe that each candidate's purpose in appearing in the so-called "debate" is to try to sell himself as the most able man to become president, not to prove himself to be a better debater than the other. I also believe that each individual citizen watches these debates to determine each candidate's position on the major issues of the campaign, not to determine who is the best debater.

Dr. Blyton has shown his politics in the article. He has been unfair to Mr. Kennedy. I do not think that Mr. Kennedy evades the issues at all, but comes out clearly on all his answers. I have watched all three debates and I have never heard a question yet that was evaded by Mr. Kennedy.

Dr. Blyton has pulled Kennedy down to the "generalities plane" with Mr. Nixon. I will not dispute the fact that Mr. Nixon talks in generalities. For example, both candidates said that they believed something should be done for the depressed areas. That is as far as Mr. Nixon goes, while Mr. Kennedy will specifically state four or five measures that can be done to help these areas. This is not the only example that can be given. There are numerous others.

Yes, Dr. Blyton, Mr. Nixon might be the thinking man's debater, but Mr. Kennedy is the thinking man's candidate.

LIONEL JOE UPDYKE

Another Disagreement

To The Editor:

You have given prominence to an assertion that "Nixon is the thinking man's debater."

Is it possible that the rara avis who values a rational approach to politics will be favorably impressed by the pietistic and chauvinistic sallies of Mr. Nixon? Or would it be more accurate to say that Mr. Nixon is the "debater's debater," or better still, the "demagogue's demagogue?" And if his opponent seems to have a lesser propensity for distortion, perhaps this is only because of ineptitude.

Indeed, what candidate would dare waste "prime time" on so limited an audience as the thinking man? After all, what impact is he likely to have on the electoral college?

I conjecture that if such a man has managed to survive in this body politic, he has withdrawn to some secluded spot to lick his wounds and to seek solace in the fact that we still have a system of separation of powers and checks and balances.

EUGENE E. EVANS

Lawyer's Surrebutter

To The Editor:

Hear ye, hear ye, whereas one of our illustrious faculty members, Prof. Roy Moreland, A.B., LL.B., J.D., S.J.D., author, lecturer, and renowned authority on criminal law, equity, and conflicts of law, has been slanderously and maliciously attacked by a group of eternal sophomores of the Law School, a hornblowing former editor of the Kernel, and another, the undersigned do hereby proclaim their accord with the sentiments expressed by the "dissenting voice" in the Oct. 18 issue of the Kernel.

1. A careful analysis of the Oct. 19 issue of the Kernel reveals the following: (a) approximately three and one-half pages of advertisement; (b) exactly one page of Narcissism; (c) approximately three and one-half pages of "news" broken down as follows: one-half page of social activities, two-thirds of a page of letters to the editor, one page of week-old sports, thus leaving one and one-half pages of actual news—and this seems to be one of the better issues.

2. May we suggest to those sophomores of the beaver patrol who do not have the time to read news when it is still news that they would have the opportunity if they did not spend so much time on the front steps of the Law School exercising their vocal cords embarrassing the coeds with their "Winston" yell.

3. As for the unsigned letters; there are persons on this campus who have and wish to express ideas on certain issues but because of their positions or because of certain reprisals cannot do so except through unsigned letters. Are we to be denied the benefit to (sic) their valuable views and constructive criticisms?

4. Our great professor took it upon himself to speak in an effort to offer some constructive criticisms hoping that the "knights of the keyboard" might stand back and take a self-evaluation poll of their paper. Then by some strange coincidence appearing just before his letter was one from the "east side," offering praise to this so called (sic) "independent paper." We wonder if this was a coincidence? We wonder also if the Kernel even hears constructive criticism.

Lawyer's Surrebutter

To The Editor:

Hear ye, hear ye, whereas one of our illustrious faculty members, Prof. Roy Moreland, A.B., LL.B., J.D., S.J.D., author, lecturer, and renowned authority on criminal law, equity, and conflicts of law, has been slanderously and maliciously attacked by a group of eternal sophomores of the Law School, a hornblowing former editor of the Kernel, and another, the undersigned do hereby proclaim their accord with the sentiments expressed by the "dissenting voice" in the Oct. 18 issue of the Kernel.

1. A careful analysis of the Oct. 19 issue of the Kernel reveals the following: (a) approximately three and one-half pages of advertisement; (b) exactly one page of Narcissism; (c) approximately three and one-half pages of "news" broken down as follows: one-half page of social activities, two-thirds of a page of letters to the editor, one page of week-old sports, thus leaving one and one-half pages of actual news—and this seems to be one of the better issues.

2. May we suggest to those sophomores of the beaver patrol who do not have the time to read news when it is still news that they would have the opportunity if they did not spend so much time on the front steps of the Law School exercising their vocal cords embarrassing the coeds with their "Winston" yell.

3. As for the unsigned letters; there are persons on this campus who have and wish to express ideas on certain issues but because of their positions or because of certain reprisals cannot do so except through unsigned letters. Are we to be denied the benefit to (sic) their valuable views and constructive criticisms?

4. Our great professor took it upon himself to speak in an effort to offer some constructive criticisms hoping that the "knights of the keyboard" might stand back and take a self-evaluation poll of their paper. Then by some strange coincidence appearing just before his letter was one from the "east side," offering praise to this so called (sic) "independent paper." We wonder if this was a coincidence? We wonder also if the Kernel even hears constructive criticism.

Newspaper Goofs Often Funny

By BOBBIE MASON
Assistant Managing Editor

The National Newspaper Week focus on journalistic operations would not be all-inclusive without mentioning the typographical error — as much a part of the lively history of journalism as the "scoop" story.

Errors which come out in print — passing the copy editor, the typesetter, and the proofreader — can be disastrous. They can be embarrassing. They can be funny. One such error, for instance, that the Kernel can scarce afford to repeat is the society editor's renowned Halloween blooper last year in which "witch" came out as a word for another kind of woman.

Among the printable errors from a sizable collection of newspaper bloopers and innuendos are suicides who jump off "brides," weather forecasts which are fair and "wild," and "two-bedroom houses" for sale.

A recent K-Book printed this sentence: "The Kernel and Kentuckian staff is made up of interested students so you may want to investigate the possibilities of working on one of them."

From paper to paper we find that people go to Africa to hunt "rhinostriches," climate is caused by the "emotion" of the earth around the sun, and the earth makes a "resolution" every 24 hours. Also geometry teaches us to bisect "angels."

According to one newspaper, Queen Victoria was the only queen who sat on a "thorn" for 63 years.

Weddings are a particularly vulnerable source of typos. We find that wedding "cows" are exchanged, brides wear chantilly "lice" dresses that fall to the floor and strands of tiny matched "pears," while their bridesmaids carry tiny "nosebags."

This summer a wedding announcement concluded with "The couple is loving in Winchester." One story said, "The bride was given in marriage by her father, wearing her mother's wedding gown."

One paper printed the following correction: "Our paper carried a notice last week that Mr. was a defective on the police force. This was a typographical error. Mr. is really a detective on the police force."

Church announcements can become frightfully distorted when set in type. One church announced a "wornhip service." Another announcement said, "Sunday masses are hell at 7, 8:30, 10, and 11."

In one state, according to a newspaper, teachers were granted a $5 a week "cost of loving" bonus.

A minister, according to another newspaper, "said" that a year ago he was one of the many loyal Americans who "felt that this was not our war," but added that now many of us are ready to stand up in meeting and confess that we were wrong and President Roosevelt was tight.

A deputy, said another paper, "created a furor when a house ran up his leg."

A club announced it would have

"Venetian blonds" in every window.

A Mercury for sale was advertised "with radio, heater, over-drove."

From a New York paper, waitresses were wanted "for extra work, good pay, bust be neat and clean."

In Illinois: "Two funfurnished rooms. For adults only." And, "For sale: Housetrailer, 15 foot, sleeps two. Perfect for bachelor."

A truck was advertised "with wench in extra nice condition."

This summer when Vice President Richard M. Nixon announced that he would fly to the South, one newspaper said Nixon planned to make several "lying campaign trips" to the South.

One paper stated, "Due to the newsprint shortage, a number of births will be postponed until next week." Another said, "There were several mistakes in births yesterday. Here are the corrections."

Newspaper columnist Hal Boyle, who prefers to write about hermits, children, and Marilyn Monroe, takes time out to pose with UK journalism teachers. From left are Victor Portmann, Dr. Niel Plummer, Mr. Boyle, and Perry Ashley. Mr. Boyle was in Lexington last week to speak at the National Newspaper Promotion Association convention. Success comes to those who wait. This is the story of Jerry Eisaman. He's been waiting a long time, too.

Prevented from playing first string quarterback because of injuries and circumstances, Eisaman has found himself as a defensive back.

His defensive play last Saturday against LSU was so impressive that it caused Coach Blanton Collier to comment, "Eisaman did as fine a job in the defensive secondary as I have ever seen."

And Collier has seen some great defending because he spent eight years teaching pass defense with the Cleveland Browns.

Always thought of as a slinging quarterback, Eisaman's several injuries plus Jerry Woolum and Tom Rodgers caused his shift to the defensive team.

Eisaman's waiting game began in 1957. After a fine showing as a freshman, he suffered a shoulder separation and missed the entire season.

The next spring, he was injured in an auto accident and missed spring practice. Despite this mishap, he managed to play nine games in 1958.

Last year, he injured his knee in the opening game and started only three games.

Apparently ready to take over this year, he was beaten out by Rodgers and Woolum. He was used only sparingly in the first three games and then played some defense against Marshall.

His long wait was climaxed when he played most the game against LSU. He will continue to play defense while waiting for a chance at a player's first love—offense.

Often one brilliant play can mean the difference between a disastrous season and a good one. Jerry Woolum's heady pitchout to Gary Steward may be just the play to give the Cats enough momentum to win the rest of their games.

By winning the rest, Kentucky would match its best previous record under Collier—7-3 in 1954.

Strangely enough, that '54 team began the same way as this year's aggregation. It lost the first two games to Maryland and Mississippi—then won seven of the last eight.

To match that record, the Wildcats must beat Georgia, Florida State, Vanderbilt, Xavier, and Tennessee.

Georgia, therefore, becomes the key game because Kentucky will be favored over Florida State, Vandy, and Xavier.

That leaves Tennessee. If Kentucky has a six-game winning streak at that point, the only way the Volunteers could stop the Cats would be for Paul Bryant to return, as a coach.

Quick prediction: Kentucky to beat Georgia in a high-scoring affair, 20-19.

'You Have To Win'

Talamini Finds Pro Ball Rewarding

Bob Talamini describes professional football as a big business, which can be very rewarding if you win.

Talamini was a member of Kentucky's football team last year and one of the best guards in the South.

"Pro ball is a big business that can be very rewarding if you win. The whole theme is to win. You have to win to draw the crowds and the crowds are what we need for the big money," he says.

Talamini is an offensive guard on the Houston Oilers team in the American Football League, which has won four of its first five games.

He goes on to describe the differences between college and pro football:

"Pro football is very different from college, here if you don't produce—you are replaced. It's operated solely as a big business and you can see why.

"A club costs millions of dollars and the owners want results for their investments.

"There is no such thing as a breather, you have to play every game as if it was the championship.

"In pro ball, you have to be very confident. The theory to go on is—we'll win until proven otherwise. You can't ever give up when you get behind. In college if one team gets two quick touchdowns, the chances are it will win.

"We are highly specialized and learn only one phase of the game very thorough.

Talamini believes the American Football League has a bright future. "Many people believe we are inferior to the National Football League. We now lack the experience, but on fight, hustle, and desire—we are equal."

"Give us two to three years and we will give it a run for the money," he predicted.

Talamini says that Billy Cannon, his teammate, will be one of the great professional backs.

Hurst Gains Five

Boyd Hurst, Triangle, picks up five yards around right end against Kappa Sigma. Bobby Meyers moves up from the right to stop Hurst. The Kappa Sigs won, 13-0.

Mayfield Describes Goal As His Greatest Thrill

"It was the greatest thrill of my life" said Clarkie Mayfield concerning his winning field goal against LSU.

"There were three others on the bench who could have kicked it. Tommy Simpson, Calvin Bird, or Bob Butler could have made it" said the modest Mayfield.

"When Coach Collier yelled, 'Mayfield,' I started to get scared. As I went onto the field, I glanced up at the clock and saw there wasn't much time left and knew this was going to be it."

"Jerry Woolum held the ball real well and I thought I had made it, but I didn't know for sure because you have to keep your head down during and after the kick.

"I knew I had made it when Woolum threw his arms around me and said 'It's good—we're in now.'"

"It was my greatest thrill, but I really was just happy to be a member of this team. It was a team effort all the way which made victory taste even sweeter," said Mayfield.

DTD, KS, And KA Still Unbeaten

Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Sigma, and Kappa Alpha remain undefeated after Tuesday night's intramural action.

The Delts beat Lambda Chi Alpha, 9-6, and the Kappa Sigs remained unscored upon by trouncing Triangle, 13-0. KA took a forfeit win from Tau Kappa Epsilon.

In other action, Sigma Alpha Epsilon topped Alpha Tau Omega, 21-6; Phi Kappa Tau beat Sigma Phi Epsilon, 20-6; and Farm House edged Pi Kappa Alpha, 18-12.

The Delts encountered more trouble than was anticipated against winless Lambda Chi. A 22-yard touchdown run by Bill Hylton and an extra point by Dick Lowe provided the margin of victory.

Claude Chafin's three-yard run was the loser's only score.

A swarm of Delts trapped

LXA's Buzz Hullette in the end zone for a safety and the other two points.

Bill Carder, Jay Rhoads, and John Hoeble teamed up for the KS' win over Triangle. Carder passed 30 yards to Rhoads for one touchdown and 10 yards to Hoeble for another.

A Carder to Rhoads pass provided the only extra point.

Jack Otis passed to Larry Brawner for a touchdown in the last minute as FH squeaked by PIKA. Otis also passed to John Matheny and John Keeton for the other two scores.

For PIKA, Dave Braun ran 15 yards for one score and passed 45 yards to Milt Minor for the other.

Bill Smith scored twice and Sid Remmele once in the SAE win over ATO. Charles Rambo took a pass from Jim Meredith for the only ATO score.

Bob Jolly, Joe Wright, and Tom Scott romped for a touchdown apiece as PKT surprised SPE. Frank DeSanto scored from 10 yards out to prevent a SPE shut-out.

KA was credited with a win after their scheduled opponent, TKE, withdrew from the league.

John Payne On Campus For Republican Rally

John Payne, star of ABC-TV's "Restless Gun" series, will speak at a Republican political rally at noon today in front of the Student Union Building.

This afternoon he will visit several of the fraternity and sorority houses.

Preceding the rally, at 9 a.m., he will appear on a local television show.

Mr. Payne arrived at Blue Grass field yesterday at 10 a.m. A motorcade took him to Eastern State College and Centre College. He spoke to students at both schools.

His trip to the Lexington area is being sponsored by the UK Young Republicans Club.

ROYAL CABLE—(No communique from the ing) but a very handsome, soft bulky knitted sweater by "Jantzen", this sweater is made of wool, mohair and alpaca. Fashioned in the pillover manner with shawl collar, or the extremely popular cardigan style. Note: to girl friends and families—A wonderful Christmas gift!!

GRANVILLE TAYLOR — S.A.E. (and now connected with construction work at the Medical Center) displayed his good taste when he wore the following set of glad rags. His suit was cut on the English hacking style with two side vents and slim lined trousers. It was a small shadow plaid of soft olive, brown and burnished gold — very, very smart. Tie of shaded silk carrying out the color scheme of the suit. Add a white oxford B.D. shirt, dark brown ribbed six, brown Bass kicks—then top it all with a char green hat (extremely narrow brimmed) and you have a picture fashion and good taste.

DON BUEHLER — Kitten (and swell guy) was loafing around the other day, dressed very neat and casual in an outfit that caught my eye. Here is a brief rundown of his threads: Continental slax of brown, olive and black plaid (cuffless of course). His olive colored sweater was fashioned with the new deep vee neck line, and piped with black trim—I really dug his black Italian half boots with double buckles. I must say "Paesano, If you play ball as good as you dress—you'll be a whiz!"

NEW FAD—On campus for football games or any outdoor activity—is the American version of the Mexican "Poncho". If you haven't seen one or tried one on—drop by and I'll be glad to show it to you—crazy.

WITH — These parting words — "Congrat's to the Cats"—I will fade until next —

So long for now,

Literary Journal Features Poems By Prof. Hazel

Robert Hazel, assistant professor of English, and Gurney Norman, a former student, are featured in the third issue of "Kentucky Writing," published by Morehead State College.

Poems by Professor Hazel and a short story by Norman are included. Norman, a former Kernel staff member, is now a fellowship student at Stanford University where he is working on a novel.

Also included are poems by a former English professor, Hollis Summers.

The paper bound volume, titled "Dark Unsleeping Land," is devoted mainly to the work of writers who attended Morehead's 1959 workshop as staff members or students.

The volume contains 26 poems and six short stories.

Parking Permits Issued In Excess Of Lots' Capacity

Students have been issued 550 parking permits for four campus parking lots with an estimated capacity of 457 spaces.

These figures were released by the Office of the Dean of Men.

More permits are issued than spaces are available because students "are coming and going and all are never at the lots at the same time," according to the secretary in charge of the parking lists.

As an example, the Scott Street lot, largest on campus, has a capacity of 215 spaces, but 300 permits have been issued for it.

"This is a usual practice," the secretary said, "because the lot holds more than 215 cars."

Capacity estimates for all campus parking areas are set by the UK Police Department.

Summit Meeting

UK President Frank G. Dickey discusses the need for a revision to the state constitution with Dick Watkins, ODK president; Dave McClellan, president of IFC; and Lessley Decker, president of the Young Democrats Club. Dr. Dickey held a meeting with campus leaders Tuesday asking them to support the call for a limited constitutional convention.
